What is Child Abuse

Child abuse in narrow sense refers to: the parents or other guardians deliberately rather than by chance for children to violence, or deliberately not accidentally dereliction of duty and the damage to the children's behavior, injury or death.

Broad sense can be understood as to children with any harm behavior.

Type of Child Abuse

In 1981, the international federation of child welfare to child abuse classified as:

1. the family members neglect or abuse a child;
2. the relevant authorities to ignore or child abuse;
3. the family outside the exploitation (child labor, prostitution, etc.
4. other treatment

Reason of Child Abuse

1. parents emotionally or physically have neglected and even abuse experience.
2. children not cute or make parents disappointed.
3. parents own life existence crisis.
4. parents' marriage crisis is also one of the reasons.

Marital discord that they often use anger to the child.

Harm of Child Abuse

Child abuse on children's mental and physical health will be a serious impact. Severe physical abuse will hurt the body of children, and even lead to death. Some children because of the fierce rivalry, shame, and verbal abuse and criticism of long-term emotional trauma. Child abuse is a global social problem, seriously affects children's growth and health of body and mind.